Notes From Sport Writers Notebook

By FRED DOWN
—United Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK (UP)—Notes from a baseball writer's notebook:
Add Sal Maglie of the Giants to those who believe Robin Roberts and Curt Simmons can pitch 300 innings each this season. "I pitched every fourth day at 35 last year," reasons Sal, "so why can't those younger fellows work every third day?"

Nevertheless, it's even money on Broadway that the Philadelphia pitchers' arms will be in slings by mid-August unless they slow down the pace. Manager Casey Stengel admits privately that Vic Raschi is the Yankees' No. 1 worry. Casey believes Raschi's legs still are sound at 34 but is seriously concerned over Vic's arm.

At 46 Leo Durocher still is the fastest man out of the clubhouse after a day in the National League. Day after day writers covering the Giants find only Leo's empty uniform beside his locker where they reach the clubhouse.

It turns out that "hard-hearted" Rogers Hornsby was a softie after all. The three-time 400-hitter reveals he used "to feel sorry for a pitcher when I went up to hit." It's 20 years too late for the pitchers to do anything about it but Hornsby did have a weakness. Pitchers could get him out with a high inside fast ball. He says so himself.

Eddie Stanky of the Cardinals calls Milwaukee's Bill Bruton "another Willie Mays." Ponderous Steve Bilko is the talk of the Cardinal team — but for his fielding not his hitting. The new-fangled pitcher, which looks like a modified blooper, that Ken Rafenberger is showing the hitters actually is the veteran left-hander's version of a fork ball.

Warren Hacker's disappointing 1-3 record is explained by the fact that he has been shut out twice and dropped a 4-3 decision. He's still a $150,000 pitcher according to most National League managers. Charley Grimm defends Johnny Logan and Jack Dittmer, the Braves' double-play combination, as "a first-class combination." Hoyt Wilhelm, who has appeared in 11 of the Giants' last 13 games, says he needs the work "to keep sharp."

National Leaguers believe $65,000 bonus pitcher Johnny Antonelli's Army duty matured him and predicted the southpaw will develop into a winner this year. The bleachers in Milwaukee will require plenty of over-hauling to become "big league" but this playing field is regarded as one of the best in the National League.

Mrs. Hyne, Miss Nyunt, Burmese Ladies,
Guest Speakers At Murray High FHA Meet

The Murray High School FHA held a meeting Thursday evening at six-thirty o'clock in the home economics room with the president, Miss Donna Fay Knight, presiding.

The guest speakers for the evening were Mrs. Hyne and Miss Nyunt, two ladies from Burma. The ladies arrived at Murray State College February 22 to take training in the field of home economics so that they can take back to Burma, American methods and ideas in this field. The Burmese ladies have come to Murray under the point four training grants which provide for tuition, travel and minimum maintenance expenses. They will leave Murray in June.

Mrs. Billy Parker
Honoree At Shower
At Morton Home

Mrs. Billy Joe Parker was the honoree at a lovely shower held at the home of Mrs. James C. Morton on Hazel Route One Friday afternoon from two to four o'clock. Hostesses for the occasion were Mrs. Morton and Miss Fannie Morton.

The guests were greeted at the door by Mrs. Morton who wore a white crepe dress. The honoree was attired in a two-piece pink outfit with rhinestone trim and a corsage of pink roses.

Mrs. Morton, mother of the honoree, wore a two-piece grey and black outfit while Mrs. William Joe Parker, mother-in-law of the honoree, chose a navy blue dress with an orchid pinned to her shoulder.

The house was beautifully decorated throughout with arrangements of spring flowers placed on the mantle and other vantage points.

The dining table, overlaid with a lace cloth, was centered with an arrangement of white and pink flowers. The table was also decorated with the words "Bill and Patricia," written across the top.

A party plate was served in the living room by Miss Fannie Morton who was attired in a two-piece suit with brown trim. Miss Sue Morton presided at the table. Fifty guests attended the event.

Mrs. Hyne, who is the mother of a three year old girl, is the state supervisor of home economics in the Eastern part of Burma. She inspects and reports on the condition of schools in general and on the education of women making suggestions for improvement. Her husband is an engineer and her brother is the ambassador to England.

Miss Nyunt is a teacher of home economics and has been training teachers in the State Training College for teachers in Burma for the past five years.

The group enjoyed listening to the ladies very much. The talks were followed by informal questions by the girls. Miss Nyunt sang the song "He's Looking Forward To Brighter Days in Burma."

Under the leadership of Mrs. Wells Overby, club sponsor, the group joined in saying the creed and singing the FHA song.

The slate of officers for the next year was read and approved. They are as follows: Miss Carolyn Carraway, president; Miss Louise Jones, vice-president; Miss Rosemary Jones, secretary; Miss Doris Ann Jewell, treasurer; Miss Patsy Shackelford, historian; Miss Edna Austin, reporter; Miss Jo Ann Webb, song leader; Misses Mary Helen Waters, Marilyn Murphy and Donna Tucker, program committee; Miss Sue Grable, parliamentarian.

Pictures were made of the group and delightful refreshments were served.

To Have New House

A new house and all new furnishings are in the plans of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Arvin, one of the Estill county families enrolled in the Farm and Home Development Program. For the farm itself, the chief improvements will be the use of tile, limestone and fertilizer to boost crop production. Fencing, buildings and livestock need little improvement, according to Fred Brinkman, county agent for the University of Kentucky.

CHERRY CORNER NEWS

Waking up Monday morning and hearing the pitter-patter of the rain falling, reminded us that there would not be any more gardening and farming done for a few days. Not much gardening and farming has been done out this way, yet. Peas, cabbage, onions and radishes are looking fair. Peas are in bloom in Mrs. Rayford Henry's garden, and also in ours. Maybe we will get better beans and string beans planted soon - hope so.

Church services were dismissed at the Cherry Corner Church Sunday night for the people to attend the Baccalaureate message at the New Concord High School. Three of our young people are of the graduation class there. They are Katherine Kendall, Betty Bonner, and Jimmie Dale Bell.

Rev. Tom McCollough, pastor of the Cherry Corner Church, has just one more Sunday (May 10) at Cherry as the pastor of the church. He goes then to Nashville, Tenn., to take up his new work. He will be working with the Sunday School Board there.

There will be a reception at the church in honor of Rev. McCollough Saturday evening at 7:30 p.m. (May 9).

Rev. McCollough's message to the church last Sunday was "The Backward Look" using scripture from Philippians 1:17. (Read it.) He says the three years with

Woman Only Survivor Of Lusitania Sinking

NEW YORK (AP)—A Birmingham, Mich. woman said Wednesday she believes she is the only remaining survivor in America of the torpedo sinking of the Lusitania, that great ship which went down 38 years ago Thursday.

Mrs. George McDougall, arrived here with her husband to inspect the Cunard liner Queen Elizabeth, which sailed Wednesday for Cherbourg and Southampton.

The Lusitania took 1,961 lives when it was sunk by a German submarine May 7, 1915.

Mrs. McDougall believed she owed her life to Alfred G. Vanderbilt, New York socialite who died in the disaster. She believed it was Vanderbilt who took off his own life preserver and handed it to her just before the vessel listed and sank.

CROWN CAVALCADE No. 16

No. 16 [ ] Henry VI. Ruled England 1422-1461.

Born 1421 at Windsor, son of Henry V and Catherine of France. He was nine months old when his father died, and there is a story he was crowned king with his mother's bracelet. A month later his father's plan of uniting the crown of England and France was realized. Henry VI was proclaimed king of France. He was kept from having a childhood, but he grew up to be a pious, gentle man. England owes great educational institutions to him. Eton and King's College, Cambridge, were two results of his reign. Other results were unfortunate for him. The French thanks to spirit aroused by Joan of Arc, expelled the English from all except Calais. Factionalism at home produced the fratricidal war of the Roses. Henry became deranged and eventually was imprisoned. He was put to death in 1471.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

by Dr. H. C. Chiles

PAUL UNDER GUARD IN ROME Acts 28:16-31

This lesson completes the series of five now being studied in the exceedingly interesting life and activities of the Apostle Paul.

I. Paul's Longing To Go To Rome Acts 28:14-15

Paul had often wanted to go to Rome, but for years he had been prevented from doing so. He yearned to see the Roman Christians and to impart to them such spiritual help as would establish them in the faith and strengthen them for better Christian service. He also prayed that God might allow him to go to Rome, from which strategic center he could reach all parts of the empire with the gospel message.

When the Lord finally opened the way for Paul to go to Rome, and the paramount desire of his heart was about to be gratified, he resolved to devote his physical strength, mental powers, compassionate heart, and numerous talents to the faithful proclamation of the glorious gospel of Christ in the capital city.

Paul's trip to Rome was quite different from what he had anticipated for he went as a prisoner, rather than as a free man and an esteemed minister of Christ. His journey from Jerusalem to Rome was one of thrilling adventure and grave peril, but the Lord was with him all the way. As they approached the city, groups of believers in Christ, who were glad to see the author of that wonderful Epistle to the Romans, went out to meet him and to welcome him. One group was so anxious to see him that they met him about forty miles from Rome, and the other group about ten miles nearer. This friendly gesture was highly commendatory in them, and immensely appreciated by Paul. Such courtesy, love and loyalty encouraged him very much. Because he was received so warmly, "he thanked God, and took courage". The presence of these brethren thrilled him as he realized through them the presence, the purpose, the promise, and the power of God. Strength, gladness, and gratitude were the immediate results of their meeting.

Although Paul was not permitted to go out to others, all visitors had unfettered access to him. He made his prison-house so warm and bright and attractive with Christian love that the people would not stay away. Each caller was able to assure all others that a warm welcome was awaiting any and all who went to Paul. Of those who went to see him and to hear him, many believed and were saved. Whether his audience consisted of one or many, he was careful to preach Christ as the one and only Savior. From our study of his experience we learn the important truth that circumstances need never prevent any Christian from witnessing for Christ. Are you as faithful as was Paul in telling others about Christ and what He can do for them?

Acts 28:31

When Paul finally entered the city it was in a manner quite different from what he had expected, but, after all, God's way is always best. How wonderfully God arranged everything! Due to the providence and the remaining generosity of the Roman officials, Paul was not incarcerated in the common prison, but was permitted to dwell in a private house in company with a soldier, to whom he was linked by a chain.

Since Paul could not go to either of the seven synagogues in Rome, because such freedom was not permitted to a prisoner, when three days elapsed he called the leading Jews to the place where he was confined. After he had explained to them the circumstances of his imprisonment, he preached Christ, the long-expected Messiah of the Old Testament, to them and pleaded with them to accept Him as their personal Saviour. Some of them believed and became Christians, but the majority continued to disbelieve and to oppose Paul bitterly. How similar to the results of preaching today!

Even though Paul was chained, he was not silenced. Instead, he was allowed to speak with the utmost freedom. Though a prisoner, he had a glorious ministry. Taking advantage of the situation, his gracious character, noble life, and powerful preaching won their admiration and resulted in the salvation of many of them. In the course of their duties, some of these men entered the palace and various others were sent throughout the empire. Thus the Lord gave His faithful servant the opportunity and honor of witnessing through others where none had ever spoken about Christ.

Chained continually to a soldier, Paul carried on an extensive evangelistic ministry, and did some of the most important work of his life and achieved some remarkable things. For example, it was during this ministry that he wrote his epistles to the Ephesians, the Philippians, the Colossians, and to Philemon. Furthermore, the Lord sent many people to him in order that they might hear the plan of salvation.

Although Paul was not permitted to go out to others, all visitors had unfettered access to him. He made his prison-house so warm and bright and attractive with Christian love that the people would not stay away. Each caller was able to assure all others that a warm welcome was awaiting any and all who went to Paul. Of those who went to see him and to hear him, many believed and were saved. Whether his audience consisted of one or many, he was careful to preach Christ as the one and only Savior. From our study of his experience we learn the important truth that circumstances need never prevent any Christian from witnessing for Christ. Are you as faithful as was Paul in telling others about Christ and what He can do for them?

White Cane Week To Start On May 15

May 15-21 has been set aside as National White Cane Week for the purpose of bringing the public to a better understanding of the social and economic problems of the blind.

White Cane Week has been proclaimed by Gov. Lawrence W. Wetherby, and endorsed by many prominent officials and leading citizens throughout the nation. It is sponsored in this state by the Kentucky Federation of the Blind, an organization of energetic blind men and women, for the purpose of promoting the social and economic welfare of the blind.

In our state, there are approximately five thousand blind persons, many of whom are now employed in offices, factories and in various other types of work. But many capable blind persons are still unemployed because many sighted employers think that they cannot do the work. During White Cane Week, the Kentucky Federation of the Blind is asking the public and employers to do all they can to help an unemployed blind person get a job.

White Cane Week was originated by a Wisconsin businessman, Ross Koen, who lost his sight late in life. So amazed was he when some blind persons of the state sought him out and showed him what the blind could accomplish, that he determined to teach his sighted friends to understand the blind as they really are. From this small beginning in the state of Wisconsin has sprung the nationwide efforts on the part of the blind to bring their sighted friends to a better understanding of them and their problems.

Use Of Peenemuende Might Answer Red Peace Sincerity

By PHIL NEWSOM

United Press Foreign News Editor

One of the best ways to test Russian sincerity in the current Red "peace offensive" might be to ask them what they intend to do about a little village called Peenemuende. There would be two reasons for such a request.

One is that Peenemuende is part of occupied Germany, once a Baltic Sea island almost directly north of Berlin.

The other is that, to the Russians, Peenemuende is what the Yucca Flats and Oak Ridge rolled into one are to us.

In other words it is a great research center and testing ground for the Russian guided missile project. Hitler developed his V-1 and V-2 rockets there, and also had his scientists working on "heavy water" in connection with the race to develop the atom bomb.

Peenemuende is at the western end of an 800-mile stretch of Baltic seacoast which is among the most heavily guarded territories in the world. Russian ships and fighter planes patrol it constantly to a distance 12 miles out to sea. At least three unarmed planes—one American and two Swedish—have been shot down by Russian planes in the general area.

Therefore, the question about Peenemuende would be especially pertinent.

One thing seems certain. The Russians do not intend to abandon Peenemuende, so carefully rebuilt after having been wrecked by British bombs in World War II.

Nor does it seem likely that the Russians intend to abandon their abases and shipbuilding yards at Wismar and Rostock, both within a minute's flying time of Denmark, or at Stettin.

And obviously, without abandoning them, talk of an over-all peace treaty and a free Germany is so much poppycock.

Modern Russia's intent to turn the Baltic into a "Russian Sea" began taking form when the Reds first attacked Finland in 1939. It gained more substance with the occupation of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania in 1940, and still more with the Russian occupation of East Germany in 1945. Barring its completion, now stand uneasy Denmark and Sweden.

In the former Baltic nations, the Russians are said to have established a "silent zone" extending back 30 miles from the coast finally gave up.

Fishing vessels have been banned off-shore, and one Swedish trawler was chased almost all the way home by the Russians before they finally gave up.
